

Smudge's Stage Scrapbook

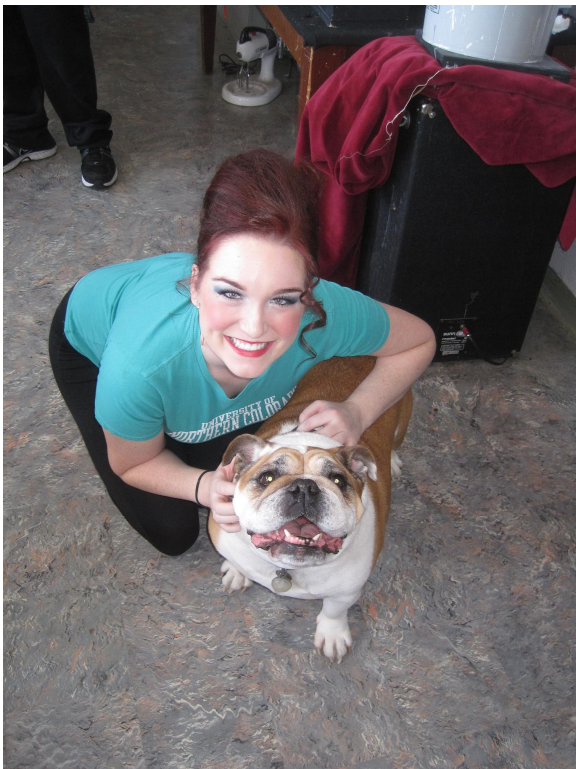

<<<<<<<<<<<<

Here I am backstage with my new girl friend Molly. She is also dating this other guy. Please don't tell him she is two-timing him.

Here are the flowers I got opening night from some fans in Portales, N.M.

Here is a picture of me and my co-star Cashelle.

This is a picture of me and my sister, Cordelia. She flew all the way from San Jose to see me. She was a music theater major in college and helped me prepare for my part.

NOTE: Dad took the pictures of the performance out in the lobby from the large screen monitor, NOT in the auditorium!

My entrance on stage - the applause from the audience was deafening of course.

We got rid of the bad guy quickly. I like it when everyone tries to get down to my level.

Here I am with my co-star Cashelle. Anna and Andrew also had minor parts in the play.

My exit stage right. I didn't flub a line during any performance!

My sister bought me a rose at the performance. How sweet!

On my way to a matinee performance

Resting between the matinee and evening performances. Acting is such hard work.

There is always a bit of post-performance depression.
Now I guess I will just have to wait for Smudge: the Musical.
